

CFO/COO opportunity at Swedish biotech impact start-up

Cellcolabs is a biotech impact startup on a mission to use advanced cell therapies to disrupt healthcare as we know it. Cellcolabs is contributing to better global health through efficient large-scale production of mesenchymal stem cells (MSC) which are used in advanced cell therapies. The company builds on cutting edge research from Karolinska Institutet and is located at Campus Solna.

Today, global production of MSC is almost only done for research purposes or in University Hospital laboratories. Cellcolabs specializes in industrial production of selected cells to make high quality and GMP produced cell therapies at scale - ultimately dramatically lowering the price of research as well as the treatments of the future.

By producing at scale, we will speed up both the clinical development and use of advanced cell treatments.

Cellcolabs is founded and backed by some of Sweden's foremost health and life science entrepreneurs. Majority owners are Takura and Norrskan Foundation.

We are looking for an entrepreneurial Chief Financial/Operating Officer to partner up with our CEO on our scale up journey. We are looking for a generalist, preferably with a background in business controlling, with commercial drive and a can-do mindset. Industry experience is not necessary if you have the right personality and experience from building and scaling businesses. You will report to the CEO.

As our first CFO/COO you will support the company in the execution of the short- and long-term vision, plans and directives by implementing judgement, vision, management, and leadership in line with the company's mission and core values. You will team up closely with the CEO to drive company development, not the least when it comes to business and operative development as well as have the responsibility to build up solid financial analysis, controlling and reporting at the company to keep close and accurate track of the financial development (including increasing financial awareness and knowledge within the organization). In addition, you will naturally work close with owner representatives and from time to time participate in Board meetings.

As CFO/COO you will provide cross-functional, operational and strategic leadership for the operation of key business functions, including but not limited to:

- Process Improvement & Operational Excellence
- Finance: Accounting and Reporting, Forecasting / Budgeting
- HR

This is a unique opportunity to contribute, shape, lead and influence within a highly entrepreneurial business, making a genuine difference to the lives of patients. If you are ready to roll up your sleeves and help us make a better world, let us know that you are the superstar we are looking for!
